TWO YOUNG MEN

Killed in Railroad Accident Near Hellier.

Deck Vaughan and Arthur Williamson, of Richardson, C. & O. Brakemen, the Victims.

An accident which occurred on the Marrowbone division of the C. & O., near the town of Hellier, Pike county, about 15 miles from Pikeville at 7 o'clock Tuesday evening caused the instant death of Deck Vaughan, aged 20 years, and the death of Arthur B. Williamson, 20 years old, about sixteen hours later.

Both young men were employed as brakemen on the C. & O., and it was while they were at work in this capacity that death came to them in such horrible form. They had gone up a spur or siding to bring down a couple of loaded coal cars. The grade on which cars lay is said to be quite heavy, and cars, either loaded or empty, would go down the track rapidly if not properly controlled. The young men got on one of the two cars, which were coupled together, and released the brake, thinking, probably, that they could control the descent. In this, unfortunately, they were grievously mistaken. They were entirely unable to control the cars with the brake, although both were at the same brake and doing all in their power to stop the heavy cars or to check their speed. On they dashed until they reached the bottom of a spur where they struck with in my kid's force some cars which were unbreakable. The track directly in the way.

Aughan fell between two cars and was ground almost to pieces. A hard day's amson fell under the wheels and was horribly mangled. His left leg was entirely cut off just below the knee, his left arm was ground off obliquely across from the elbow to the thumb, his back was broken, and there was a compound fracture of the right leg between the knee and ankle.

The dead and injured were placed on a special and the body of Vaughan left at Pikeville to be prepared for burial, while Williamson, in charge of C. & O. surgeon Z. A. Thompson, was brought to this place arriving about 5 a. m., Wednesday, and taken to Riverview hospital. The poor fellow was beyond all human help, however, and died at 11:15. He never rallied from the shock of the injury. The body was properly cared for, placed in a casket and sent to his home on the 5:24 train.

Young Williamson was a son of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Williamson, of what is known as Old Peach Orchard, a short distance below Richardson, and a brother of Mont Williamson a farmer living near this city. This brother and the aged mother were present during the final hours of the son and brother.

Deck Vaughan was a son of Mr. Sam Vaughan, who lives at the old Forbes station, between Peach Orchard and Richardson, and was a nephew of Mr. P. H. Vaughan, of this city.

Both young men were sober and industrious and highly respected, and their sudden and untimely taking off is greatly lamented by relatives and friends.

PARADISE LOST.

Sunday night, March 24th, Dr. Hanford will deliver his seventh sermon lecture on Milton's Paradise Lost. Theme: "The School in Eden." In this lecture you will be made acquainted with the teacher of the ancient school and what he taught. That was the model Sunday School. None should miss next Sunday night's service.

THE PASTOR.

OPERATION FOR TUBERCULOSIS

Dr. T. D. Burgess went to Gallup Tuesday and operated on a son of John H. Prosser. Tuberculosis is one of his arms. The young man is about 18 years old.

TWO BROTHERS KILLED.

According to a report that reached here yesterday afternoon, two men, twin brothers, were struck and instantly killed at Bluestone, W. Va., a small station on the Pocahontas division of the Norfolk and Western. The men were Elbert and George Baker, papers among their effects giving their homes as Louisa, Ky.

According to the details of the double tragedy the two men had been stealing a ride on an eastbound freight, but were driven from the train at Bluestone by the conductor. The two were engaged in a game of "crap" when struck by extra west freight No. 1039. Their bodies were hurled some distance and death was instantaneous.

The corpses of the victims were held at Bluestone awaiting the arrival of relatives from Louisa, Ky. Huntingdon Herald-Dispatch.

Diligent inquiry fails to find anyone in Louisa or Fort Gay who knows who these boys were.

KENTUCKY ASPHALT AND FIRE-CLAY.

Referring to plans for Kentucky developments, S. M. Bradley of Morehead, Ky., writes to the Manufacturers Record as follows:

"We have not started operations in regard to developing asphalt rock in Carter county, but we have recently acquired more of this territory and have some very fine deposits of asphalt and fire-clay. We are contemplating organizing a large company to work these mines. We have enough fire-clay and asphalt now to run a number of plants for years. As it has all been worked and tested, there is no question as to the quality."

AFFRAY IN FLOYD COUNTY.

Epp. Lafferty, marshal of Prestonsburg, shot and probably fatally wounded Sid. Blizzard in a shooting affray which occurred between Lafferty and Blizzard here last Sunday. Lafferty had made an arrest, and we are informed that Blizzard who is considered a dangerous man, tried to take the prisoner, shot twice, missing Lafferty when Lafferty shot him three times.—Prestonsburg Monitor.

PIPE LINE PROBLEM

Is Now Confronting Operators in This Oil Field.

There is not much news from the oil field this week. Work on several wells is going along satisfactorily. The Potet well east of Busseyville should be completed next week.

The machinery for the Burgess-Garred well will be moved to the location within the next few days. The derrick has been completed.

Some of the Cumberland Pipe Line Company's men are here, so we are informed, to put in a line from the Busseyville field.

It is reported that some local men of means who have interests in the oil field are figuring on laying a pipe line to the railroad so as to get full price for the oil. The oil is worth $1.50 per barrel, but it is said the Cumberland proposes to run it into their line carrying cheaper oil and pay something less than one dollar per barrel. We are not giving this as absolutely correct information, but the fact that the same thing is being done elsewhere lends credence to the report. Fortunately, this oil field is so near a railroad that the operators are not at the mercy of any pipe line. If they will refuse to sign a contract, that would tie them up. All local companies should pull together in this most important matter.

On Burning creek, W. Va., two miles from Warfield, Ky., a gas well was drilled in, making nearly two millions feet per day. The lease belongs to a company in which Judge John H. Holt, Dr. M. G. Watson and others are interested. The contractor is Earl Cameron, of Louisa. The company will continue the drilling to the Big Injun sand in search of oil.

The Busseyville Oil Company purchased two gas engines and pumping their wells.

NO NEED OF PANIC.

The interview with Gov. McCreary, published in The Times of Saturday concerning the appropriations made by the General Assembly should put a quietus on the notion that Kentucky is about to go into bankruptcy.

That the General Assembly has been liberal in its appropriation for education is not to be denied. That it would have been far better for the State had this policy been inaugurated years ago, is not open to intelligent dispute. As to the other appropriations approved by the Governor, his statement makes it clear that they have been carefully considered by him and by the General Assembly and the State, in virtually every instance, will get a full return on its investment. No more could be asked.

The bank examiner's law, instead of imposing a cost of $25,000 a year on the taxpayers, will not cost them a cent, although it gives to every depositor an assurance of security heretofore unknown. Ten thousand dollars a year is a small sum to pay for State supervision in the building of roads. It would have been wise economy had the cost been $500,000 with State aid the result.

The Times believes that it would have been better both for the party and the State had the prisons been taken out of politics and all questions of administrative policy now essentially partisan in their nature been removed from the atmosphere of political patronage, but when it comes to a conservative, common sense administration of the State's business affairs and educational interests, Gov. McCreary's judgement can safely be trusted.

Through the joint acts of the Governor and the General Assembly Kentucky is at last headed in the direction of material development and progress. The goal is not to be reached without cost. As the old negro preacher said to his congregation: "It ain't true bredren and sistren, dat de watahs uv life is free, but somebody is got ter pay fur de hydrant."—Louisville Times.

NASH CLOTHING COMPANY.

The Nash Clothing Company—Na-Clo-Co.—is now occupying its new and very attractive place of business, on Main Cross street, nearly opposite the court house. It has been especially fitted up and arranged for the company's business—clothing, hats, shoes and everything worn by men. Everything, including the stock, is spick and span. In style the goods are the latest, and in quality they are of the best. Read the Na-Clo-Co. ad. in today's paper.

SKINNED A BLOCK.

A Breathitt county farmer sold a merchant what the buyer supposed was a five-pound ball of fresh country butter but what turned out to be a robust wad of cornmeal dough, with a thin veneering of butter. The "sang" digger who loads the roots with lead and sells the stuff at present prices has the Breathitt man skinned a block.

WERE MARRIED IN COLUMBUS.

Miss Gertrude Hatcher, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Hatcher, of Louisa, was married in Columbus, O., on Saturday, March 9, to Mr. William Bartram, formerly of Fort Gay. They will reside in Pittsburg, where Mr. Bartram has employment. It is the second marriage for the groom.

THE MEETING HAS CLOSED.

The successful series of meetings held in the Christian Church last week came to a close Sunday night. The services were conducted by the Rev. Mr. Ogden, State Evangelist of West Virginia, assisted by the pastor, the Rev. C. M. Summers.

CONFEDERATE PENSIONS.

The Adjutant General, with the approval of the Governor, has appointed William J. Stone, of Lyon county, examiner of pensions under the new Confederate pension bill.

The six weeks' administration of C. Hog came to a close this week. It is hoped that he will for a second term.

DEATH

Comes Alike to Young and Old.

Four Persons Known Here Respond to the Call of the Relentless Reaper.

Ed. Wellman.

After an illness of several weeks young Ed. Wellman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charter Wellman, of this city, succumbed to the ravages of typhoid fever on last Saturday evening. The funeral services were conducted at the Christian church by the pastor, the Rev. C. M. Summers on Monday afternoon, and were largely attended, the church not being large enough to accommodate all who sought this occasion to manifest their sympathy for the parents and kindred of the dead boy. Interment followed in the Fulkerson cemetery.

The deceased was in his eighteenth year and was an excellent young man. Not long before his sickness he had gone to Pikeville to work at his trade of a printer, and it is thought that he contracted fever while there. About a week after his return to Louisa he began to complain of feeling bad. This continued for a week when he went to bed, sick of the malady, which caused his untimely death. Much sympathy is expressed for the bereaved family.

Former Louisian Dead.

Judge Thomas Bogness, formerly of this city, died at his home in Ashland last Saturday night after lingering on the brink of death for weeks. Mr. Bogness was 83 years old and was born in March 1829, in Marion county, Va.

He is survived by two sons Thomas Bogness, who was postmaster here for the past twelve years, Charles Bogness, civil engineer and two daughters, Agnes and Bertha Bogness, who are at home.

He and his family lived in Louisa several years. He was a merchant, doing business in the old brick on the corner of Main and Water streets. He was a highly respected citizen.

Mr. Tate Greaver.

Mr. Tate Greaver, son-in-law of the late Judge Richard Vinson, died of Bright's disease at his home at Wytheville, Va., last Sunday night. News of his critical condition reached Louisa Saturday in time for Mrs. Greaver's sister, Mrs. Vic Priehard, to leave on the night N. & W. train for Mr. Greaver's home. Interment was made at Five Oaks, Va. Mr. Greaver was about 45 years of age and is survived by a widow, who was formerly Miss Dora Vinson, and by two children a boy and a girl.

Death of a Child.

Fred, the four-years-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hawes, of Walbridge, died on the night of Wednesday, March 13, of brain fever. The child had been sick of whooping cough, then pneumonia followed, and inflammation of the brain closed the short life of a very bright and interesting boy.

M. E. CHURCH, SOUTH.

Sunday School at 9 a. m., Augustus Saydor, Supt.

There were present last Sunday 180. Is there any reason why there should not be 200 next Sunday? There are so many out of the Sunday Schools in Louisa. Let every one do his duty inviting persons who do not attend anywhere.

Preaching at 10:30 a. m., Theme—"Knowing Christ."

Preaching at 6:30 p. m., Theme—"The Poor Man's Gospel." Prayer service Wednesday evening at 6:30.

Let us have an increased number each Wednesday night. You will find a list at all of these services.

J. W. CRITES, Pastor.

SHOULD MAKE A NOTE.

A Cincinnati girl was visiting in Augusta, Ky., about three years ago, and while there she slipped on the street and injured a knee. She brought suit for damages, claiming there was a hole in the sidewalk. In the Federal Court at Covington she was awarded a judgment for $2,500. There is scarcely a brick sidewalk in the city of Louisa that has no holes or bad places, almost any of which is sufficient to cause a pedestrian to fall. At the intersection of Lady Washington and Main streets there are two holes, each two or three feet deep and sufficiently wide to admit two legs of a horse. These holes have been there ten days or more, with nothing to show their location except a couple of sticks. Anyone injured by these bad sidewalks or these pitfalls can obtain a judgment against the city for damages. Why does the city take the risk?

BISHOP BURTON.

Bishop L. W. Burton, of the Episcopal church, held services and preached in the M. E. Church, this city, on Monday night last to a very large and intelligent audience.

The sermon is pronounced by all who heard it a splendid effort, one of the best in every respect they ever heard. It was grand in conception, grand in composition and magnificent in its delivery. It was heard with rapt attention from the exordium to its fitting close. Bishop Burton's scholarship, his eloquence, his faultless diction and splendid voice make him a most captivating speaker. Following the sermon Miss Kate Freese sang a solo in her own delightful way.

During his stay in Louisa Bishop Burton was the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Wroten.

MISSOURI TOBACCO.

Some of the Missouri tobacco on the Maysville market sold at a good price while some of it was passed up without a single bid, the buyers claiming they could not use it in any way.

Farmers in this section who intend to raise the weed should make a note of this fact and sow the right kind of seed.

STREET PAVING.

Gist of the New Law for Towns of the Fifth Class.

Following are the chief provisions of the new law giving City Councils of fifth class cities the power to have the streets paved and sewers put in:

The city council is hereby authorized and empowered to order any work they may deem necessary to be done upon the sidewalks, curbing, sewer, streets, avenues, highways, and public places of such city. The expenses incurred in making and repairing sidewalks and curbing shall be paid by the owners of the lands, fronting and abutting thereon, each lot or portion of lot being separately assessed for the full value thereof, in proportion to the frontage thereof to the entire length of the whole improvement, not exceeding a square, sufficient to cover the total expense of the work; but the owners of such property shall have the right to make such improvements, if they prefer doing so, instead of paying for the same. The cost and expenses incurred in constructing or re-constructing streets, avenues, highways, sewers and public places shall be paid out of a general fund of the city or by the owners of the land fronting and abutting thereon, as the city council may in each case determine; or the city council may order and direct that two-thirds only of said cost and expenses so incurred shall be paid by the owners of the lands fronting and abutting said improvements and the other one-third paid by the city; but the local assessments shall not exceed fifty percentum of the value of the ground after such improvement is made excluding the value of the buildings and other improvements upon the property so improved.

The cost of constructing or reconstructing the intersection or crossing of streets, avenues and highways shall be at the expense of the city.

The ordering of such improvement shall be by ordinance of the city council, and the contract therefor shall be awarded to the lowest and best bidder after proper advertisement for bids. The city council shall require the accepted bidder to execute a bond to the city with good and sufficient security to be approved by said council for the faithful performance of his contract.

The original construction or reconstruction of any streets, avenues, highways, alleys, sewers and public places may be made at the exclusive cost of the owners of the lots and part of lots or lands fronting or abutting or bordering upon the proposed improvements to be equally apportioned by the city council according to the number of front feet owned by them respectively or in part at the cost of the owners and in part at the cost of the city, upon the petition of a majority of the property owners of lots or parts of lots, or land abutting or bordering upon the proposed improvement; or the city council may cause same to be done without such petition upon the vote of four members elect of said council at a regular meeting thereof; or the council may, by a majority vote of any regular meeting thereof cause any such improvement to be made upon the ten year bond plan as hereinafter provided.

But any work undertaken under the provision of the preceding section to-wit: Upon the ten year bond plan is completed in accordance with the contract, the work shall be received, by the city council and the said council shall order the payment for the same made to the contractor by issuing an order to the city treasurer to pay same in full out of "The Street Improvement Fund."

Whenever any work done hereunder (upon the ten year bond plan) has been completed and accepted, the city council shall issue the bonds of the city, in sums not exceeding the cost of said improvement, and all expenses in connection therewith, including the expenses and the issue and sale of said bonds, and shall sell the same to the highest bidder after due advertisement at a price not less than par and accrued interest. Said bonds shall be divided into ten series each series to be as nearly equal as possible, said series to be paid respectively in one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine and ten years after date. Said bonds shall be of the denomination of one hundred dollars or multiple thereof not exceeding five hundred dollars, and shall bear interest at a rate not to exceed six percent per annum, and shall be payable at a Kentucky bank to be designated by the city council.

All property fronting or abutting or bordering upon said improvement belonging to the city shall be considered and assessed as property belonging to individuals, and the assessment thereon together with the cost of intersections and crossings shall be paid by the city out of the general fund, and charged to the "Street Improvement Fund." The assessment shall be made as soon as the improvement fund is fully completed, and the sum assessed against each piece of property, and also the owners thereof, shall be placed upon the tax list of the city, and shall be payable to the city treasurer, in ten equal, annual installments with interest at the rate per annum which said bonds bear upon the unpaid portion thereof.

The owner or owners of lots or parts of lots of land, may at any time after the assessment for a street improvement is made, pay off in full the whole amount up to and including the next ensuing date provided for the payment of said city taxes.

A PLEASANT AFFAIR.

Seven or eight couples assembled at the hotel Savoy Tuesday evening and spent several hours in dancing.

The affair was very informal and very pleasant, having been greatly enjoyed by all who were so fortunate as to be present.

W. J. Vaughan, the State Sunday School field worker, was here Monday night on business, and was the guest of Frank Henderson, of Lexington avenue.—Ashland Independent.

A nervy express messenger on the Southern Pacific railroad proved himself a hero when he killed two armed bandits who had boarded the train near Sanderson Texas.

The messenger was rewarded by the road with $500.

The Savannah River at Augusta, Ga., is at a standstill and it is believed that the worst is over there. The damage is estimated at $1,500,000. Disastrous floods are reported from North and South Carolina as well as Alabama.

A bomb was sent by mail to Judge Otto Rosalsky, of New York, but he became suspicious and notified police headquarters before opening it. An inspector who opened the package was injured by the explosion.

Press Fowler, a juror, who was wounded when the Allen gang shot and killed Judge Massie, the Sheriff and Commonwealth's Attorney at Hillsville, Va., Thursday, died yesterday, bringing the death toll up to five.

"Uncle Tom" Beasley, colored, reported to be 103 years old, and believed to be the oldest person in Central Kentucky, if not in the State died Saturday morning of the infirmities incident to advanced age.

Wage increases aggregating more than $10,000,000 will go into the pockets of New England textile workers during the next twelve months, according to estimates of increases offered the mill operatives in an effort to adjust labor troubles.

Whitesburg, Ky., March 17.—Wiley Quillen, Sherman Quillen and Miss Cora Quillen, of Baker, have returned from a horseback trip to Pikeville, reporting a close call for life while attempting to cross Shelby Creek while the stream was in a swollen condition. The horse Miss Cora was riding stumbled in a swift current of the stream and she fell off and was almost drowned. In attempting to rescue her Wiley Quillen, the girl's father, was caught in the current and came near drowning. But for the timely efforts of Sherman Quillen both would have drowned.

Whitesburg, Ky., March 17.—Sol Frazier, 65, of the Cowan Creek section, died after a long illness. He leaves eleven living children. He was an uncle of J. H. Frazier, of Whitesburg.

Whitesburg Ky., March 17.—Much damage has been done by the recent rises in the North Fork to the bridge and trestle work along the line of the new Lexington & Eastern grade work in this county while numerous heavy slips have come into the road which will necessarily delay the work of laying the steel.

Whitesburg, Ky., March 17.—The Pine Mountain Manufacturing company, a lumber concern, has removed its plant from Jenkins to Cane Branch, lower down on Elkhorh where it will manufacture lumber for the Consolidation Coal Company, which the latter will use in building the city of Jenkins and its suburbs.

Nicholasville, Ky., March 16.—A trial of an unusual character was held in Quarterly Court here today when "Shep," a handsome collie dog belonging to L. R. Ruthford, was tried on a charge of killing sheep.

William Mackey, several days ago had some sheep killed by dogs and accused "Shep" of being one of the guilty dogs.

As Mr. Ruthford values "Shep" very highly, he objected to his being killed unless it could be proved that he was guilty, and the matter was taken into court.

The trial resulted in the dog's acquittal, as it was proved that he had nothing to do with the killing of the sheep.

Washington, March 16.—The North Fork Cannel Coal Company, with headquarters in Redwine, Ky., filed a complaint with the Interstate Commerce Commission today against the Chesapeake & Ohio, the Morehead & North Fork, the Ann Arbor and some eighty other railroads in which it is alleged the complainant is unjustly and unlawfully discriminated against in rates on coal from Redwine to the Central Freight Association territory.

It is represented complainant's competitors at numerous points on branch lines of the Chesapeake & Ohio, approximately the same distance from Ashland as from Redwine are charged rates from 5 cents to $1.15 less than rates from Redwine to such said points to which Redwine has any rate. It is also alleged rates on cannel coal as fixed by the existing tariffs are generally 15 cents per ton in excess of rates on other bituminous coal. Adjustment of rates and damages are asked.

Lexington, Ky., March 14.—Word was received here Wednesday that Gov. Kitchin, of North Carolina, had commuted to time served—about two years—the thirty-year sentence imposed on Thomas B. Whitson, convicted of murder. Whitson, after his conviction, escaped from the penitentiary, and for sixteen years had lived, under an assumed name, an exemplary life in Letcher county, Ky., where he had married and reared a family. Whitson was arrested here about a year ago by Chief of Detectives Malcolm Brown and taken back to North Carolina. Mr. Brown felt deep sympathy for the man, and was one of those who had signed a petition to Gov. Kitchin for Whitson's pardon, which was signed by a large number of the best citizens of Letcher county, who had known and respected Whitson during his long residence there.

Paducah, Ky., March 14.—Brooding over a quarrel with his father, who administered a whipping, Earl Petty, fourteen years old, returned to his home near Tobacco, in Calloway county, four miles southeast of Murray, late yesterday afternoon and resumed the argument. It ended when he blew out the brains of his father, Tom Petty, thirty-eight years old, with a shotgun.

Apparently unmoved by his crime young Petty reloaded his gun and fired another shot into the prostrate form of his father. Petty did not make any attempt to escape, and was arrested near his home last night. Under guard of two Deputy Sheriffs he attended his father's funeral and burial to-day. He will be placed in the county jail at Murray to-night.

Glasgow, Ky., March 16.—Great excitement prevails in Monroe county over the finding of a little baby floating down the Cumberland River in a barrel. The baby was a boy and seemingly about one year old. The barrel was securely tacked to two logs and was so arranged that the youngster could not crawl or fall out. The baby was well dressed and was resting on a cosy little bed in the barrel snugly tucked in a blue blanket. Pinned upon the dress was a slip of paper with the words, "Goodbye, Willie," written upon it. The child is being tenderly cared for, and in the meantime every effort is being made to find out the starting point of the youngster in the hope of obtaining a clue to its parents.

Nothing in years has caused so much comment and indignation among citizens as the finding of the baby on his lonely journey exposed to the bad weather.

Havana, March 16.—Under lowering skies and in a heavy, tumbling sea, the old battleship Maine, resurrected after fourteen years' burial in Havana harbor, to-day plunged with her colors flying to her everlasting rest 600 fathoms deep in the sapphire waters of the Gulf. The sinking of the hulk was carried out precisely as planned, marking the end of the great work begun more than a year and a half ago.

After imposing ceremonies in the morning, which ended with the formal transfer of the custody of the bodies of the heroic dead by the Mayor of Havana, Julio de Cardenas, to Brig. Gen. W. H. Bixby, chief of the engineer corps, United States army, as the representative of the United States, the coffins were taken aboard the armored cruiser North Carolina, where they were deposited on the quarterdeck, completely covered by a great mound of floral tributes, under a guard of honor composed of marines. Minute guns were fired by the North Carolina and the scout cruiser Birmingham and the batteries of Cabanas fortress until the ships cleared the harbor.

Hillsville, Va., March 14.—In a flame of unprecedented outburst, the entire human fabric of the Carroll County Circuit Court, in session here to-day, was wiped out by assassination.

Just as Judge Thornton Massie had sentenced Floyd Allen to one year in prison for aiding in the escape of a county prisoner, two of Allen's brothers and several of their friends opened fire with revolvers. Judge Massie fell dead on the bench on the first volley.

Then the weapons were turned on Commonwealth's Attorney William Foster, and he sank to the floor with several bullets in his brain, death being instantaneous.

Sheriff Lewis Webb, making a frantic effort to reach the ring-leaders, was shot dead before he had taken ten steps. Several of the Jurors who had tried the case were seriously wounded. J. H. Blankenship probably fatally.

The Allens, including the prisoner and their friends, after the killing of the Sheriff, backed slowly out of the court room, holding all would-be pursuers in check at the point of revolvers. Once outside, they made a dash for the mountains on horseback. A posse of citizens was in pursuit, and reports have reached here that one of the Allens had been seriously wounded in a pitched battle which was fought with the posse.

Special officers are being rushed into the county to help in running down the murderers. Gov. Mann is holding two companies of militia in readiness in case the Allens and their friends gather recruits in the mountain fastnesses. Hillsville is in a remote quarter, fifteen miles from Barren Springs, the nearest railroad station, and outside help will be late in arriving.

The village was thrown into a ferment. The wiping out of the law officers left affairs in the hands of untrained citizens, but nearly every man in this section of the county has joined in the hunt.

Hillsville, Va., March 15.—The end of the day's chase of the Hillsville raiders brought the death list of the court-house tragedy and its sequel up to five.

Sidna and Floyd Allen, two of the chiefs of the band, which rode down on the Carroll county court-house yesterday and assassinated the Judge, the Prosecutor and the Sheriff, are in captivity, both wounded severely. Sidna Allen's wife is dead, shot in a pitched battle with a posse in the mountains while helping defend her outlaw husband.

The fifth death was that of Nancy Ayres, a 19-year-old girl, accidentally shot during the fusillade in the courthouse yesterday.

Whitesburg, Ky., March 18.—Hundreds of witnesses from Letcher are on hand for the trial of G. W. Morgan in the Perry Circuit Court at Hazard charged with the murder of United States Marshal F. M. Blair and the serious wounding of Deputy Sheriff J. D. Blair on the Letcher-Perry border three months ago.

Blair and the Deputy Sheriff went to arrest Morgan on a penal charge when Morgan resisted and opened fire, killing Blair on the first charge.

Deputy Sheriff J. D. Blair fought on and did not retreat until he was seriously shot both in the left arm and right leg, from which he will perhaps be a cripple for life.

San Antonio, Tex., March 18.—Between twenty and thirty men were killed outright and fifty injured in an explosion of the boiler of one of the Southern Pacific railroad's finest locomotives in the yards here to-day.

Many of the dead and injured were strikebreakers, mostly from the North, who came last fall at the beginning of the Southern Pacific shopmen's strike, which has not yet been settled.

A full public investigation into the explosion will begin immediately. Four buildings, forming a square about the tracks where the locomotive stood, were wrecked.

MEMOIR.

Mrs. William Peck was born in 1873, and fell asleep March 8, 1912. At the age of 21 she was converted and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church at Peck's chapel. The following evening her beloved husband also was converted, following her good example. Thus her very earliest Christian experience began bearing fruit for the Master. For many weeks prior to her death she was a great sufferer, but between the moments clouded with suffering her beautiful soul would emit the radiance of a joyful, consecrated life. She leaves a husband, and seven children and a host of relatives and friends who rejoice in the blessed hope of the resurrection, but her spirit is already with our Lord. She was never so much alive as at this moment. Death to the child of God is an unfolding of pinions, an opening of doors, and entrance into a larger life, a beautiful life, full of glory and felicity. Let us not be selfish in our grief, but say with the saint of old, "The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away, blessed be the name of the Lord."

Her body was laid to rest in the old cemetery near Chapman, Ky., March 11, 1912, the pastor officiating. May we take comfort in these words, "He that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live again."

There are three words that sweetly blend,
That on the heart are graven;
A precious, soothing balm they lend,
They're mother, home and heaven.
They twine a wreath of besetuous flowers,
Which, placed on memory's urn,
Will e'en the longest, gloomiest hours
To golden sunlight turn.

They form a chain whose every link is free from base alloy;
A stream where whosoever drinks
Will find refreshing joy.

They build an altar where each day Love's offering is renewed;
And peace illumines with genial ray Life's darkened solitude.

If from our side the first has fled,
And none be but a name,
Let's strive the narrow path to tread,
That we the last may gain.

HER PASTOR.

FOR THE WOMAN WHO THINKS AND FEELS

Some women complain that they periodically suffer from dull and heavy feelings, or dizziness in the head, nervousness, pain and bearing-down feeling should not occur to the normal healthy woman. But most every woman is to these pains at some time in her life, due to abnormal conditions in the system, over-taxed strength, bad air, poor or improper food, wet feet, liver, etc. A regulator and female tonic made from native medicinal pure glycerin, and without the use of alcohol, called

DR. PIERCE'S FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION has proven its value in thousands of cases, like the following:

Mrs. MARTIN.

Mrs. DONA M. MARTIN, of Auburn, N. Y., Route 1, Box 1, writes: "I thought I would write you in regard to what your medicine has done for me. I have used them for thirty years for constipation and general weakness with the very best results and they have cost me hundreds of dollars in doctors' bills. I buy the 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery' and take them together. I was disappointed in your remedies and take pleasure in recommending them to any suffering lady. I am now almost fifty years of age and I took your medicines, both kinds, and I passed that easily and left me fat and healthy. I feel like a young girl. If any lady cares to write me, I will gladly tell her the good work of your medicines."

Dr. PIERCE'S GREAT FAMILY DOCTOR, Common Sense Medical Adviser, newly revised—of 1008 pages, answers hosts of questions which every woman, single or married, sent free in cloth binding to any address one-cent stamps, to cover cost of wrapping.

A report reached Louisa yesterday that Congressman W. J. Fields blood poison and is in a very bad condition. He is said to be waiting for a needed operation. Friends throughout the state hope for his speedy recovery.

Prepared by Rev. Roscoe Murray.

Standard, W. Va., March 13th, 1912. Rev. Roscoe Murray, assisted by P. Kirk of Inez, Ky., just 12 days meeting at this Central State died of heart failure. There were about seventy persons, and the church in a greatly revived spiritual condition. Bro. Kirk assisted in singing hymns of praise; as sometimes expressed it. "By a joyful noise unto the Lord." Truly consider Bro. Murray a devoted Christian, and an able worker of the gospel, and as he to other fields of labor we that the Lord will still continue to bless him and his efforts, that he may be the instrument of God's hands of causing many to their lives to the service of the Lord.

Big Plans for Catlettsburg.

The Tribune has it from authority that seems to be of the most reliable character that a large cooking plant and by-product industry will be established right away at Clyffside Park. The company is said to have been capitalized by Eastern people in the sum of $600,000, $100,000 of the stock having been subscribed in this section. Another big industry is said to be coming in the form of a paper manufacturing plant. Both of these are to be located on the Gartrell lands, the cooking concern have already taken over the necessary grounds, while the projectors of the paper plant have secured options on a proposed site.—Catlettsburg Tribune.

NOTICE TO REPUBLICANS.

December 22, 1911.
Rule two of the Republican Rules and Organization, provides as follows:

"The election of precinct chairmen shall be made at 2 o'clock p. m. standard time on the first Saturday in March of each Presidential election year at the place of holding the last previous election in said precinct unless the County Committee shall fix another date."

In accordance with the power vested in the State Central Committee in this rule a resolution was adopted at the meeting of the Committee, Thursday, December 21st, changing the date of the election of precinct chairman from the first Saturday in March to the first Saturday in May; therefore, precinct chairman will be elected at 2 p. m. standard time, Saturday, May 4th, 1912, and all County Committees will be governed accordingly. The rule was not obtained in any other particular.

Very truly yours,
ALVIS S. BENNETT,
Secretary.

GUESS WHO.

Martin County Postoffice Robbed. The store of P. S. Johnson, which also contains the postoffice at Oppy, Ky., was looted last Friday night apparently by George Workman and his wife.

The front door of the store was broken down and merchandise valued at $200 carried away. The thieves also secured a small amount of money from the postoffice funds.

A posse traced the thieves to a rock cave several miles back in the country. In the cave were George Workman and his wife and a search revealed about half of the stolen goods.

The couple were taken to the county jail at Inez and will be turned over to the government authorities for trial in the federal courts.

KEITH OF THE BORDER

A TALE OF THE PLAINS

By RANDALL PARRISH

Author of "MY LADY OF THE SOUTH,"
"WHEN WILDERNESS WAS KING," etc.

Illustrations by DEARBORN MEIVILL

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Jack Keith, a typical border plainsman, is riding along the Santa Fe trail on the lookout for roaming war parties of savages. Keith had won his name as captain in a Virginia regiment during the civil war. He had left the service to find his old southern home in Texas, his friends scattered, and the fascination of wild western life had allured him. He notices a camp fire at a distance and then sees a team attacked by a wagon and at full gallop pursued by men on ponies.

CHAPTER II—When Keith reaches the wagon the raiders have massacred the men, shot the horses and departed. He searches the victims' bodies and finds a pocket with a woman's portrait. He resolves to hunt down the murderers.

CHAPTER III—Keith reaches Carson City and is arrested there charged with murdering and robbing the two travelers. He is accused by a woman's portrait. He resolves to hunt down the murderers.

CHAPTER IV—They can readily swear to the crime. The latter goes to the jail realizing the peril of swift border justice. A companion in his cell is a man who tells him he is Ned and that he knew the Keith family back in Virginia.

CHAPTER V—Ned knows about the murdered men from the description by Keith. He says one was John Shiley, another Gen. Willa Waite, formerly an officer in the Confederate army.

CHAPTER VI—The plainsman and his friend escape from the cell.

CHAPTER VII—The two fugitives become lost in the sand desert.

CHAPTER VIII—They come upon a ranch and find its lone occupant to be a beautiful young girl. Keith recognizes her as a singer he saw at Carson City.

CHAPTER IX—The girl explains that she came there in search of a brother who had deserted from the army. She had met a Mr. Hawley, who had induced her to come to the cabin while he sought to locate her brother.

CHAPTER X—Hawley appears, and Keith in hiding recognizes him as the notorious Black Bart. Hawley tries to lure Keith to the girl.

CHAPTER XI—There is a terrific battle in the darkened room in which Keith overcomes Black Bart. Hawley is arrested, and the girl who had induced her to come to the cabin while he sought to locate her brother.

CHAPTER XII—Keith explains his situation as a fugitive from justice.

CHAPTER XIII—The fugitives make their way to the Arkansas aiming to reach Fairbairn.

CHAPTER XV—Keith is riding Black incorporation in the saddle-bags disapproving (bearing the name of Christ) and he believes Miss Hope is a road up for the landlady that she is and to the girl's room.

CHAPTER XVI—The fugitives Keith, Ned Sheridan, and Fairbairn, who had induced her to come to the cabin while he sought to locate her brother.

CHAPTER XVII—Keith explains his situation as a fugitive from justice.

CHAPTER XVIII—The fugitives make their way to the Arkansas aiming to reach Fairbairn.

CHAPTER XX—Keith is riding Black incorporation in the saddle-bags disapproving (bearing the name of Christ) and he believes Miss Hope is a road up for the landlady that she is and to the girl's room.

had forgotten," he answered, releasing her hand reluctantly. "If you could have looked into the dining-room since, instead of staring out of these windows."

"Why? How forgotten?" her eyes opening wide in surprise.

"I had the pleasure of taking supper with Miss MacLair."

"Oh!" the exclamation decidedly expressive.

"Yes, I come at once to you with the confession. However, our meeting was purely accidental, and so I hope for pardon."

"Pardon from me? Why, what difference can it possibly make to me?"

"Would you have me consort with the enemy?" he asked, scarcely daring to press his deeper meaning.

"Oh, no, of course not. What did you talk about? Do you mind telling?"

"Not in the least; our conversation was entirely impersonal. She was telling me about Hawley; what a wonderfully good man he is. I have begun to suspect the fellow has fascinated the poor girl—he is a good looking devil, possessed of a tongue dripping with honey."

"Surely you do not mean she has fallen in love with him," and Hope shuddered at the thought. "Why—why that would be impossible for—a good woman."

"Standards of morality are not always the same," he defended gravely. "Miss MacLair's environment has been vastly different from yours, Hope. She is a variety hall singer; probably, from her own account, a waif since childhood; and Hawley has come to her in the character of a friend appealing both to her interest and sympathy. I do not know she is in love with him, I merely suspect she may be; certainly she is ready to do battle on his behalf at the slightest opportunity. She believes in him, defends him, and resents the slightest insinuation directed against him. He even escorts her back and forth from her work."

"You know this?"

"I certainly do," and he laughed at the recollection. "Fairbairn met us coming out of the dining-room—you know what a delightful, blunt, blundering fellow he is! Well, Miss Christie must have made an impression even on his bachelor heart, for he actually requested the privilege of escorting her to the Trocadero, and back to the hotel after the performance to-night—hinted at a lunch, the gay old dog, and pranced about like a stage-door Johnnie. It was a treat to watch her face when he blurted it all out, snapping his sentences as if he swung a whip-lash. She excused herself on the score of a previous engagement."

"But that was not necessarily with Hawley."

"I asked her directly, after the doctor had disappeared."

"You must have become very familiar," questioning once again in her voice.

"So Miss MacLair evidently thought, judging from her manner. However she answered frankly enough, and even defiantly added the information that the gentleman had something to impart to her of the utmost importance, sarcastically asking me if I didn't wish I could be there and overhear. But sit down, Hope, until I tell you all that has occurred."

He went over the various events in detail, watching eagerly the expression upon her face as she listened intently, only occasionally interrupting with some pertinent inquiry. The light fell so that she sat partially in the shadow, where her eyes could not be seen, yet he experienced no difficulty in comprehending the various moods which the merest narrative, the color of her cheeks, her suppressed breathing toward him, or leaning backward in the chair, her fingers clasping or unclasping in nervous anticipation. He began with Ned's report, repeating word by word, as nearly as he could recollect, what had passed between Hawley and her father. He paused to inquire if she had ever heard the name Bartlett, but her reply was merely a negative shake of the head. When he described their riding the train, she was, apparently, not convinced as to the General's agreement upon it, although finally agreeing that, if he really believed the report that the man sought was elsewhere, it would be characteristic of him to accept the first means of getting there. "If he only knew I was here," she exclaimed wearily, "it might be so different, but, oh, we are all of us just groping in the dark." Then Keith turned to his chance meeting with Miss MacLair, and repeated carefully their conversation, dwelling particularly upon the few admissions which had slipped through her lips. These did not seem important to either, although they treasured them up and talked them over. Then, having exhausted the topic, silence fell between them, Keith asking the privilege of lighting a cigar, Hope, after watching him apply the match, thinking what a fine face he had as the ruddy flame brought it forth with the clearness of a cameo, leaned back, drawing aside the semblance to a lace curtain, and staring forth, without seeing, into the street.

"Somehow, it was hard for her to fully realize the situation, and how closely it affected her. The swiftly passing events, the complication arising so suddenly, apparently out of nothing, left her feeling as though she must surely awake from a dream. She could not comprehend what it was all about; the names Bartlett and Phyllis had no clear meaning; they represented nothing but shadows; and this other woman—this music hall singer—what could there be in common between them? Yet there must be something—something of vital importance to her father—something which had already cost her brother's life. That was the one thing which made it seem an actuality—which brought it home to her as a rugged fact. But for that—and Keith—Keith sitting there before her—she would have doubted it all. And yet even Keith had come into her life so suddenly, so unexpectedly, as to leave her dazed and uncertain, that she extended her hand and touched him, as though to make sure of his actual presence.

"What is it, Hope?"

"Oh, nothing—nothing," her voice breaking in a little sob. "It is so silly, but I was just wondering if you were real—everything seems so impossible. I cannot bring my mind to grasp the situation."

He did not smile, but only took the groping hand into both of his own.

"I think I understand, little girl," he said gravely. "You are totally unused to such life. Almost without a moment's warning you have been plunged into a maelstrom of adventure, and are all confused. It is different with me—since the first shot at Sumter my life has been one of action, and adventure has grown to be the stimulus I need, and upon which I thrive. But I assure you, pressing the soft hand warmly, "I am real."

"Of course I know that; it makes me glad to know it. If I could only do something myself, and not just sit here, it would all become real enough to me."

She rose suddenly to her feet, clasping her hands together, her face changing with new animation.

"Why couldn't I? I am sure I could. Oh, Mr. Keith, it has just come to me how I can help."

He looked at her questioningly, thinking of her beauty rather than of what she said.

"Do—do I really appear so much like—like that woman?" she asked anxiously.

"Very much, indeed, excepting for the slight difference in age."

"That would never be noticed in the dark, or a poor light. Am I the same height?"

"Practically, yes."

"And my voice?—could you distinguish me from her by my voice?"

"I might; yet probably not, unless my suspicions were aroused. What is it you are thinking about?"

She took a deep breath, standing now directly facing him in the light.

"Of playing Miss MacLair to-night," she said quickly. "Of taking her place, and learning what it is of so much importance Hawley has to report. Don't you think it might be done?"

The sheer audacity of this unexpected proposal left him speechless. He arose to his feet, gripping the back of the chair, almost doubting if he could have heard aright, his eyes searching the girl's face which was glowing with excitement. Of course he could not permit of her exposure to such a risk; the scheme was impracticable, absurd. But was it? Did it not offer a fair chance of success? And was not the possible result worthy the risk assumed? He choked back the earlier words of protest unuttered, puzzled as to what he had best say. A quick-witted resourceful woman might accomplish all she proposed.

"It looks so simple," she broke in impulsively, moving nearer him.

"Don't you think I could do it? Would it be unwomanly?"

"The result, if accomplished, would abundantly justify the means, Hope," he acknowledged at last. "I was not hesitating on that account, but considering the risk you would incur."

"That would be so small—merely the short walk alone with him from the theater to the hotel," she pleaded. "Once here it could make no difference if he did discover my identity."

CHAPTER XXVIII.

The Stage Door of the Trocadero.

Hope discovered very little difficulty in duplicating the outer garments Keith reported Miss MacLair as wearing. The colors, indeed, were not exactly the same, yet this difference was not sufficient to be noticeable at night by the eyes of a man who had no reason to suspect deceit. The girl was in a flutter of nervous excitement as she hastened about the room, donning her few requirements of masquerade, yet Keith noted with appreciation that she became perceptibly cooler as the moment of departure approached. With cheeks aflame and eyes sparkling, yet speaking with a voice revealing no falter, she pressed his arm and declared herself prepared for the ordeal. The face under the shadow of the mantilla was so arch and pliant, Keith could not disguise his admiration.

"Am I Christie MacLair?" she asked laughingly.

"Sufficiently so to fool our friend," he returned, "but I am ready to swear opinion of his ally. There is too much at stake. Wait here, Hope, and I will be back the very moment I learn all that is necessary."

A glance at the office clock convinced Keith that, in all probability, Miss MacLair had not, as yet, departed for the scene of her evening triumph. Still, it could not be long before she would, and he lit a cigar, sitting down in a corner partially concealed by the clerk's desk to wait her appearance. This required longer than anticipated, and fearing lest he might have missed the departure entirely, he was about to question the busy Thomas, when he beheld Hawley enter hurriedly from the street and run up the stairs. He, then, had been the laggard. All the better, as he would now have no opportunity to unfold his tale to the lady, as it would be necessary for them to hurry to the theater. Whatever the nature of the revelation it would have to wait until the walk home. The excitement of the adventure was already creeping into Keith's blood, his pulse quickening.

The two returned almost immediately, conclusively proving that Miss MacLair, fully dressed for the street, had been awaiting the arrival of her gallant with some impatience. Hawley was busily explaining his delay as they came down the stairs, and paid little attention to the seemingly deserted office. Indeed, Miss Christie monopolized all his thoughts. With quick scrutiny the watcher noted the more conspicuous articles of apparel constituting her costume—the white mantilla thrown over her head, the neatly fitting blue dress, the light cape covering the shoulders—surely it would not be difficult to duplicate these, so as to pass muster under the dim light of the streets. Far enough in their rear to feel safe from observation he followed, noting with increased pleasure the rapidity with which they covered the required distance. Clearly Miss Christie was already nervous lest she have not sufficient time remaining in which to properly dress for her act, and there would be no exchange of confidences on the outward journey. Hawley left her, as Keith anticipated, at the stage entrance, the lady hastening within. Her escort strolled leisurely back to the front of the house, and finally, purchasing a ticket, entered, the performance already having begun.

Keith knew perfectly the arrangement of the theater—the seats in front; tables all through the center; a gallery filled with benches; a noisy orchestra beneath the stage; a crowded audience of men, with only here and there a scattered representative of the gentler sex; busy waiters dodging in and out among the tables, and down the aisles, filling orders for liquors from the nearby saloon. The air would be pungent with the odor of drink, thick with the fumes of tobacco, and noisy with voices, except as some special favorite on the stage won temporary attention. The Trocadero possessed but one redeeming feature—no doorway connected stage and auditorium, and the management brooked no interference with his artists. It had required some nerve to originally enforce this rule, together with a smart fight or two, but at this period it was acknowledged and respected. No sooner had Hawley vanished than Keith found occasion to enter into casual conversation with the door-keeper, asking a number of questions, and leaving impressed upon the mind of that astute individual the idea that he was dealing with a "gent" enamored of one of the stage beauties. A coin slipped quietly into the man's hand served to deepen this impression, and unlocked discreet lips otherwise sworn to secrecy. Out of much general information a little of real value was thus extracted—Miss MacLair's act began at 9:45 and was over promptly at 10:10. It required about twenty minutes more for her to change again into street clothes, and she usually left the theater immediately after, which would be about 10:30. Yes, there was a vestibule outside the stage door, and on bad nights, those waiting for the ladies could slip in there. But on such a night as this they generally hung around outside. No, there was no watchman, but the manager was frequently prowling around. He'd be busy, however, at 10:30, getting the stage ready for the "Flying Her-mans." Abundantly satisfied and resisting the door-keeper's professional suggestion that he'd better buy a ticket and take a look at the show, Keith slipped away, and hastened back to the hotel. The more he investigated the more feasible appeared the girl's plan, and he was now fully committed to it.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

The Stage Door of the Trocadero.

Hope discovered very little difficulty in duplicating the outer garments Keith reported Miss MacLair as wearing. The colors, indeed, were not exactly the same, yet this difference was not sufficient to be noticeable at night by the eyes of a man who had no reason to suspect deceit. The girl was in a flutter of nervous excitement as she hastened about the room, donning her few requirements of masquerade, yet Keith noted with appreciation that she became perceptibly cooler as the moment of departure approached. With cheeks aflame and eyes sparkling, yet speaking with a voice revealing no falter, she pressed his arm and declared herself prepared for the ordeal. The face under the shadow of the mantilla was so arch and pliant, Keith could not disguise his admiration.

"Am I Christie MacLair?" she asked laughingly.

"Sufficiently so to fool our friend," he returned, "but I am ready to swear that lady never looked so charming."

"A compliment, and spoken as though you really meant it."

"Have I not been honest enough with you in the past to be credited with honesty now?" he protested, a little hurt by the bantering tone.

"Of course you have; I merely talk lightly to keep my courage up. You can have no idea how afraid I am."

"Then you are truly an actress, for you appear the picture of enjoyment. But we must go, or Hawley will be there before us, and thus spoil all our plans."

They passed out through the office together, seeing no one familiar to either, Hope keeping her face partially concealed. The east side of the street was less frequented than the other, having fewer saloons along its way, and they chose its darkness. As they advanced, the long habit of frontier life caused Keith to glance behind before they had progressed a block, and he was thus made aware that they were being followed. Conversing lightly, and without a word to alarm the girl, he managed to observe every movement of the dimly outlined figure which advanced with them, timing every motion to theirs. Long before they crossed the street to the Trocadero he was convinced there was no mistake—the fellow, whoever he might be, was trailing them. Keith smiled grimly to himself, resolving that as soon as he had left the lady he would teach the spy a lesson not soon to be forgotten.

They barely entered the outer circle of the Trocadero lights, noting a group of men thronging about the doors, and hearing the sound of the band within, and then turned swiftly down the narrow dark alleyway leading toward the stage entrance. Keith, having been there before, advanced confidently, but Hope, her heart beating wildly, clung to his arm, scarcely venturing a word in reply to his whispered assurances. Fortunately they encountered no one, and Keith, feeling cautiously in the dark, easily succeeded in locating the opening to the vestibule. Listening intently he became convinced that no one occupied the little shed. He had intended to remain with the girl until the time came for her to emerge, but the remembrance of that figure dogging them all the way from the hotel now caused a change of plan. He held her hand closely clasped in his.

"Now, Hope, I am going to leave you," he whispered, "and your own wit will have to carry you through. I know you will play your part all right, and it will be mine to wait for Christie, and give her some explanation of why Hawley failed to meet her as he promised. It will never do for her to suspect, until you have time to learn all possible. You are not afraid?"

"Yes, I am," clinging to him, "but I am going through it just the same."

"The truest kind of courage, my girl. Now slip inside, but hold the door ajar. Hawley will certainly be here within ten minutes, and you must join him at once, or else the other might appear. You can judge as to its being him even in this darkness. Good-bye."

The longing to clasp her in his arms, to speak the language of his heart, was almost overwhelming, yet the memory of that figure flitting along behind them, and the brief time before Hawley's probable appearance, for he would leave the theater at the conclusion of Miss MacLair's act, restrained all demonstration. This was a moment for action, not for words of love; no delay should hazard the success of their undertaking. He heard the slight creak of the door as the girl slipped within the concealment of the vestibule, and then he glided away through the darkness with the stealthy silence of an Indian. There was no one in the alley-way, which was narrow and easily explored, but the glow from the front windows plainly revealed the shadow of a man near the entrance, and Keith slipped up toward him, hugging the side of the building for concealment, prepared to resort to harsh measures. As he reached out, gripping the astonished loiterer by the collar, they stared at one another in surprise, and the gripping hand as instantly released its hold.

"You, Fairbairn! What the devil does this mean? What are you spying on us for?"

Clearly taken aback, yet not greatly disturbed, his eyes showing pugnacious and his jaw set, the Doctor rubbed his throat where Keith's knuckles had left a red welt.

"Damn you, I think I'm the one to ask for an explanation," he growled. "She said she was not going with you, and now you are around here together at this hour. I had a right to know whether I was being played with like that."

"But, man, that was not Miss MacLair I was with; it was Hope Waite. Come back here under the tent flap while I explain."

Fearful of the coming of Hawley he fairly dragged the portly figure of the bewildered Doctor with him, striving, by quickly spoken words, to make him comprehend the situation. Knowing previously something of the issues involved, it was not difficult to make Fairbairn grasp the meaning of this present movement, yet his sympathies were at once enlisted upon the side of Miss Christie. He'd be damned if he would have any part in such a scheme—if she had a right to the money he'd help her get it—it was a cowardly trick, and he'd fight if necessary, to keep her from becoming a victim. His voice rose, his arms brandishing violently, his sentences snapping like rifle shots. Keith, angered, and fearful of a discovery which would leave Hope exposed, realized the futility of discussion and turned to physical force. Grasping the gesticulating man with both hands, he flung him backward and dragged him into the empty tent, kneeling on him as he throttled him to the earth.

"Now, Doctor, you listen to me," he said sternly. "I'm through arguing. I hate to treat you like this, for you are my friend, but I'll not stand for interference here. Do you get that, you old fool? Lie still until I get through! I respect your feelings toward Miss MacLair. She is a good girl, and I hope to heaven you get her if you want her. But you never will if you permit this affair to go on. Yes, I know what I am talking about. In all that Hope and I do we are serving you and Christie—our only fight is with 'Black Bart' Hawley. Stop being a bullet-headed old fool, Fairbairn, and understand this thing. Lie still, I tell you, and hear me out! Hawley is a liar, a thief, and a swindler. There is a swindle in this thing somewhere, and he hopes to pull out a big sum of money from it. He is merely using Christie to pull his own chestnuts out of the fire. She is innocent; we realize that, but this fellow is going to ruin the girl unless we succeed in exposing him. He's not only involving her in his criminal conspiracy, but he's making love to her; he's teaching her to love him. That's part of his scheme, no doubt, for then she will be so much easier handled. I tell you, Fairbairn, your only chance to ever win the interest of Christie MacLair is to help us down this fellow Hawley. Yes, you can sit up; I reckon you're beginning to see clearer, ain't you?"

Keith drew aside the flap of the tent to glance without, the light falling on Fairbairn's face as he struggled to a sitting posture. He had had a new thought driven into him, yet failed to entirely grasp its significance.

"But, Jack," he asked, still half angry, "how about the girl? Hasn't she any right to this money?"

"I don't know," honestly, "we don't any of us know, but whatever she has the right to she is going to get. You can bet on that, old man. We're bucking Hawley, not Christie MacLair—get that into your head. He hasn't any right, that's certain, for he murdered and stole to get the papers—be quiet! Here the fellow comes now!"

They peered out together through the convenient tent flap, Fairbairn scarcely less interested than the other, already dimly comprehending that his truly dangerous rival was the gambler, and that he could best serve the lady by helping to prove to her the real character of that individual. He was still blindly groping in the haze, yet out of Keith's sharp, stinging words there had come to him a guiding light. The latter gripped his arm in restraint.

"Easy, old man, easy—let him pass."

Hawley turned into the alley whistling, evidently well pleased with the situation and anticipating other delights awaiting his coming. The glow of the Trocadero's lights served, an instant, to reveal his face, shaded by the broad brim of his hat, and then he vanished into the dark. Keith leaning far out, yet keeping well within the shadows, heard the faint creak of the vestibule door and the soft murmur of distant voices. Then he drew back suddenly, his hand again grasping Fairbairn. Two figures—those of a man and woman—emerged into the dim light, and as quickly disappeared. Apparently her hand was upon his arm, and he was bending down so as to gain a glimpse of the face partially concealed by the folds of the mantilla. Only a word or two reached them, a little laugh, and the woman's voice.

For eight years I suffered with the dreadful malady. Doctors pronounced that I would have consumption in a short while and I really thought so myself. And I kept using anything and everything that was recommended for catarrh, but gave up all hopes, when a friend of mine wanted to sell me a box of W. D. Fitzpatrick's Catarrh Remedy. I said no, I'll not buy it. I have used so many remedies that were worthless it makes me doubt all the rest. My son was present and he said, 'Father, if you will use it I will pay for it.' I agreed to the proposal, and began using it, and I soon felt that I was receiving good results. I continued on until I used the box nearly up and now I am well. I cannot praise the W. D. Fitzpatrick Remedy too highly. I trust those who have lost faith in other remedies like I had will try W. D. Fitzpatrick's Catarrh Remedy. Send today and give it a trial. Don't neglect yourself, because I urge that catarrh at any time is liable to assume dangerous characteristics." Put up in liquid and powdered form, 25c, 50c, $1.00 sizes.
